

EPA ANNOUNCES THE AVAILABILITY OF THE ADMINISTRATIVE RECORD FOR CHAIN BIKE REMOVAL SITE, ALLENTOWN, PENNSYLVANIA

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) announces the availability for public review of files comprising the administrative record for the Chain Bike Removal Site in Allentown, Pennsylvania. EPA encourages the public to comment on documents as they are placed in the record.

The administrative record includes documents, which formed the basis for EPA's removal action at this site. Documents now in the record include the index of documents, factual information and data, policy and guidance, and other agency documentation. Other documents may be added to the record as site work progresses. These additional documents may include formal changes to the scope of the work of the removal action, comments and new data submitted by interested persons, and EPA responses to significant comments.

The administrative record is available for review during normal business hours at:
